

FREE APPAREL: SCRUBS & FOOTWEAR FOR HEALTHCARE WORKERS

Crocs Shoes

Crocs announced it's donating 10,000 pairs of shoes a day to the health care workers fighting the coronavirus pandemic. "Now and always, we need to take care of each other," the brand tweeted. "Sending love to you, #CrocNation. And sending free shoes to our frontline heroes in healthcare."

Crocs are donating a free pair of shoes (with free shipping) to healthcare workers on the frontlines of COVID-19. Claim your free pair of Crocs here.

Allbirds

Allbirds is donating shoes to the medical community. The brand says it's already given out $500,000 worth of shoes and has added a "buy a pair, give a pair" option to its website so customers can pitch in, too.

Amazing response to our donation. We've since distributed $500k of shoes and listened to our community by adding a "buy-one-give-one" option in the U.S. + option to donate a pair to a healthcare worker. Donate your pair here:

<https://t.co/0D1HGLQ3Mcpic.twitter.com/jHRq5wWq96>

Barco Uniforms

Barco Uniforms, a recognized leader in the medical apparel industry, will be donating scrubs to medical professionals on the frontlines for the duration of the COVID-19 crisis. Submit a request here.

Clove Shoes

Clove is including free compression socks with every Clove purchase. Just add a pair of socks to a cart containing shoes, and use code WITHLOVE for the discount to properly apply. Click here for more information.

Ably Apparel

If you're a first responder, you can tag yourself on Ably's Instagram page starting April 8th and the company will send you a free item from their website.